THE LONDON SENSATION

Still the Topic of the Hour—Becoming a Question of National Moment.

Revolting Confessions of Case-Hardened Wretches—Innocent Victims.

The text of the Pall Mall Gazette's exposures of London's dark spots, cabled to the eastern press reveals, a worse state of affairs than it was possible to suppose existed anywhere. Paris, Vienna, Berlin, St. Petersburg and other large cities are now setting inquiries on foot in order to ascertain the actual state of affairs, socially.

WICKEDNESS IN NEW YORK.

The New York press has already sounded the alarm, which will be taken up by every city of any pretensions in the Union. In a recent issue of a leading New York journal it is stated that a portion of the city's vice has been transferred for the hot weather to Coney Island. That is a lawless stretch of seashore, anyhow, and about half a mile of it is now a pandemonium of condemned amusements. Beer gardens, with girls for waiters, and other girls of reckless conduct, are not only numerous, but no restriction, not even the faintest concession to decency, is placed upon the doings in them. It is not probable that elsewhere on earth is there an equal aggregation of open licentiousness. A lewd dance is wildly performed on unscreened platforms under electric light; the drinking has all the excess arising naturally from the holidays, or nights out, of New York's worst youngsters; and there is a unique feature in the bathing by these bacchanals, who exploit their shamelessness in the surf to the high entertainment of spectators. There is practically but one rule enforced by the proprietors of the bath establishments at this part of the island as to the conduct of the bathers, and it is that nobody shall drown.

THE FUROR STILL GOING ON IN LONDON.

A cablegram states that the excitement over the Pall Mall Gazette's revelations continues without abatement.

The sittings of the commission are being held privately. The Gazette representative in order to prove the system pursued gave an order to Mme. X. for five innocent girls to be obtained for his use. The girls were punctually found, and the commissioner being notified, he went with the girls and the procuress to a doctor for an examination. Three were certified and two were rejected, because they were not attractive. The commissioner paid Mme. X. the price agreed upon, and departed armed with vouchers from medical men attesting their purity.

VILLAINS OF HIGHEST RANK.

The chief of the Gazette's editorial staff spent a month in these London infernos. He heard of these brutes, which have their own peculiar code of ethics, statesmen summed up and relegated to their places and judges and queen's counsel praised or blamed, not for their legal acumen or lore, but from their addiction to unnatural crimes, and their familiarity with obscene and debasing literature. A well known member of parliament, being interviewed by a commissioner, laughed heartily when asked what he knew or surmised concerning the traffic in young girls. He said: It is true that maids are obtainable at so much a head. I myself have procured a hundred at £25 each. The girls know what they are doing and it is nonsense to call it rape. They know their purity is a realizable asset and they are not slow to set a price upon it.

REVOLTING CONFESSIONS OF A WRETCH.

Under the head line "Confessions of a Brothel Keeper," the Gazette prints an interview with the former keeper of a noted house in the East end, but who now has reformed, and whose wife, also reformed, was once a notorious woman of the town. He said: Child maids, as you call them, or as they are known in the trade, fresh girls, are constantly in request. A keeper knowing his business has his eyes open in every direction. His stock of girls is constantly getting used up and needs replenishing. Getting fresh girls takes time, but the process is simple and easy when one becomes used to it. Another simple way of supplying them for purposes of corruption is by breeding. Many professional women have female children which are worth keeping as merchantable property. When she was twelve or thirteen years of age, I sent my own daughter into the streets. I have known a couple of little girls to be sold outright and shortly afterward bred and trained to become lewd. Drunkards often sell their children with the distinct understanding that they are to enter establishments in the East end and be reared to an abandoned career. The trouble really is now that the supply often exceeds the demand. Then you must yourself or employ somebody to do it for you, which is a bad business in a double sense. A man called "S.," whom a famous bagnio used to employ, made a profession of the business, and fitted out victims at times when there was no demand for them, but as a rule the number of girls ready to hand is ample, especially among very young children. I once sold a girl aged 12 years for £20. I have myself gone into the country and courted girls in all kinds of disguises. Sometimes I disguised myself as a traveling parson. After securing the confidence of the girl I would propose a visit to London for a day to see the sights, a proposal rarely if ever refused. Arriving in the city I would take the girl to a restaurant, give her plenty to eat and drink, especially the latter, and take her to the theater. After leaving the theater a visit to the restaurant for supper would be prolonged, so that the last train would be lost. There being no other alternative, the girl would naturally accept the offer of a lodging for the night. After she had gone to bed the rest of the business would be managed by my client, who, upon taking possession, would pay me £10 or £20 commission. In the morning the girl, knowing herself to be ruined and being afraid to return home, would readily consent to enter a disreputable house.

DO THE NEFARIOUS WORK

A SCHEME OF THE POLICE.

The police of London are striking back at the Pall Mall Gazette for the strictures that paper has made on them during its recent exposures of London vices. They cannot assail the paper directly, but they have devised an ingenious plan for making its revelations appear ridiculous and for creating popular prejudice against it. The plan consists in pouncing upon everyone seen walking with a young girl and asking him to explain their relationship and the reason for their being seen together. The average Briton angrily resents this interference by "Bobby," and tells him to mind his own business. The policeman excuses himself by saying that since the publications in the Gazette his orders have been very strict, and he is obliged to suspect everybody. This implied insult makes a citizen an enemy of the Gazette for life, and he generally unburdens himself by writing long and indignant letters to the Times. The correspondence columns of the papers have been crowded this week with furious letters from men who have been stopped while walking with their daughters. The large number of these letters indicates that there is a concerted plan on the part of the police to irritate respectable people into making complaints against the Gazette. The police have been surprisingly active during the past few days. Arrests for offenses against chastity have been almost twice as numerous as during corresponding days of last year.

CARDINAL MANNING INTERVIEWED.

The New York Post's cable special correspondent says: "I have secured an interview with Cardinal Manning, cardinal archbishop of Westminster. His eminence was deeply moved in speaking of the matter, but gave the editor and proprietor of the Pall Mall Gazette his strongest support. 'I know Mr. Stead,' Cardinal Manning said, 'and I have perfect confidence in his intentions and integrity. What he has done has been done in combination with a number of trustworthy persons and with legal advice, so his evidence depends not on hearsay, but on direct personal knowledge. The extent of the evils now exposed has long been indistinctly known, but it has been impossible to obtain legal proof. Stead is the first person who has ventured, at great personal sacrifice and endurance, to obtain this legal proof. The evidence is certain. In publishing statements so detailed, and often so vivid, he will encounter, as he has done, a great deal of obloquy, but on the other hand, he has the firmest support of a very large number of men of all classes, and of the highest influence in England.'"

AMERICANS INTERESTED.

The New York Sun of the 16th, in a leader refering to the persistent effort of a leading journal here to discredit the London scandal, says: "It concerns us deeply in this country to ascertain the exact truth about the Pall Mall Gazette's charges, for it is alleged that on the black list of patrons and promoters of the conspiracy devised for abducting and debauching innocent young girls the names of some Americans, occasionally residents in London, are, to their infamy, recorded."

RECENT MASONIC DECISIONS.

Grand Lodge of Canada A. F. & A. M.

The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Canada A. F. & A. M., was held this year in Hamilton, Ont., M. W. G. M. Murray presiding, and who was elected for the current Masonic year. After recording the deaths, visitations, new lodges opened, appointment of representatives, he proceeded to announce these amongst other

DECISIONS:

Can a Quaker, who does not take an oath or administer one, be made a Mason?

No. An affirmative, in lieu of the oath or obligation of Masonry is not admissible.

Candidates for Masonry, before initiation, require to declare their belief in a Supreme Being who has revealed his will to man. Is the Bible meant by that revealed will?

Certainly, God's holy book is his revealed will. It is one of the three great lights placed on the altar to rule and direct our faith.

Can an agnostic who says, "There may be a God, I do not deny it, but I do not know there is," be a Mason?

No. No person can be initiated who does not believe in the true God, the great architect of the Universe, the creator and preserver of all things, who has revealed His will to man, and who will punish vice and reward virtue.

What should be done in the case of a Mason who is taking an active part in promoting and furthering the so-called Free-Thought doctrine?

An atheist, who denies the existence of a God; a free-thinker, who discards revelation or who expresses contempt for God or religion, should be proceeded against according to the mode laid down in "Masonic Trials."

Can an Indian, who is not enfranchised be made a Mason?

Yes. Color, creed, or country is no bar to initiation. The question of admitting a candidate is one of expediency, and is left to the judgment of the members of the lodge where such application is made.

What are the correct numbers in Grand Honors?

Nine for Grand Master; seven for Deputy Grand Master, and for District Deputies; five for all other elected Grand officers; three for other distinguished brethren. The honors given to Past Grand officers are the same is given to present officers.

It appeared that the cash capital of the Grand Lodge is $68,394. Referring to the case of agnosticism in Toronto he said: The man who denies the existence of a God is already excluded; practical atheism should also be excluded, in the persons of those who only admit that there possibly may be a God, there may be a future life, where men will be rewarded or punished for the deeds done in the body. How can such a one be a Mason? The volume of the sacred law, given to rule and govern our faith and placed on our altars, has for him no symbolic meaning. His answer that he puts his trust in God is untrue, to him the philosophy of Masonry is meaningless. He concluded by expressing his sympathy with the Grand Lodge of Quebec in their course in the dispute with the Grand Lodge of England, but said further than this he could not go.

"Vancouver is a Daisy."

General Van Horne, in a recent interview, stated that the Canadian Pacific line would be completed by October 1, across the Rocky Mountains, which will give all rail communication to Canadians from Halifax, N. S., to Vancouver Island, B. C., on the Pacific coast. Some difficulty was experienced in the selection of a western terminus. Port Moody was at one time thought to be the best terminal point as its harbor is exceptionally fine and without making any improvements the largest ocean vessels could go into port. But Vancouver is a daisy and caps them all. Work on the line has been pushed as rapidly as possible, though it has been impossible to get all the men that the company wished to do tunnel and rock work on the mountains. The grading on the western end will be finished within six weeks with the exception of six miles of tunneling of the Rockies. Until the tunnel work is completed a switch back arrangement will be used.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

An Extraordinary Cricketing Performance—A Reformation of the Rules.

Ross and Hanlan have challenged Teemer and Gaudaur to row a double-scull race, about September 1st. Teemer and Gaudaur will probably accept.

H. Hutchins, the English sprinter, recently beat the 140-yard record, covering the distance in 13 3-5s. The best previous record was 14s.

The Californians are about to ship their crack two-year-old greyhound Muldoon to England to try and win the coursing Derby, the Waterloo cup, next February. He is unbeaten as yet, and is the property of a Mr. Hall.

The Toronto Mail devotes nearly a column to cricketing in Victoria. The matches between the Victoria and Union and Cathedral Institute and Victoria are published in full, with a very accurate description of the games.

Thos. E. Flynn, of the San Francisco Call's editorial staff, won the Pacific coast single scull championship, open to all comers, two miles with a turn, against Wm. Gowney, by three lengths. Time, 15 minutes and 30 seconds.

In the "big four" bicycle race from Arlington to Kingston, Ont., Stone was the first to arrive, making his 100 miles in 8.28, Menger second in 9.00½, and Webber third in 9.16½. The roads are in a bad condition and the weather was showery.

There is a prospect of an international single-scull race for $5000 a side and the championship of the world, be ween Wm. Beach, the champion, and either Edward Hanlan, Wallace Ross, or John Teemer. Ernest W. Moon, special correspondent of The Australian Sportsman, and who also represents J. G. Deeble, Beach's backer, offers to match the latter to row any oarsman in this country for $5000 or $10,000, or upward, the race to take place on the Parramatta River, Sydney. Expenses will be allowed to anyone who will meet him.

The controversy in England on the question of fair bowling still continues to wax in strength, and the cricket of the future promises to become revolutionized if the present discussion bears its proper fruit. Ever since the introduction of round-arm bowling the legitimacy of that style of delivery has been brought into question, in fact round-arm bowling was originally condemned on the plea that it was in reality a throw. In the days of such bowlers as Mynn and Redgate, when the attacking force was composed entirely of under-arm bowlers, the art of batting was subservient to the art of bowling, but now-a-days this subserviency is reversed, as I trust I may infer from the frequency of instances of excessive scoring. I am strongly inclined to think that the game lost rather than gained in interest since the introduction of round-arm bowling, and were a return feasible to the old order of affairs I for one should stand forward and advocate by every means in my power the change. I think the time is at hand when some efforts should be made to shorten the length of time required to play a first class match. A thousand and one expedients have been suggested, and I may in passing mention a few which are most favourably thought of. They were widening the wicket, diminishing the bat, or decreasing the distance between the wickets. Upon hearing of all this wordy discussion a novice would very naturally imagine that throwing was infinitely more difficult to play than bowling. This is a mistaken idea, as any practised cricketer will acknowledge. If a bowler though alternates throwing and bowling deliveries the whole front is changed, and the trouble is exposed to the light of day. Should the batsman be placed under so great a disadvantage? I think not, though I am thoroughly in favor of any proposition which in action would reduce by fair means the length of the batsman's tenure.

A performance which has never been equalled in a first-class match was accomplished June 2, at Lord's ground, London, England, by Gunn and Barnes in the second innings of the M. C. C. against the Yorkshire. These two batsmen became partners at about a quarter to one, with the score at 72 for three wickets, and when they were separated at seven minutes after six the total stood at 402. Thus while they were together they actually put on 330 runs. This surpasses anything previously done in a big match. The nearest approach to it was in August, 1883, in Clinton, England, when Alfred Lyttelton and L. D. Walker, playing for Middlesex against Gloucestershire, put on 324 for the second wicket. On that occasion Lyttelton scored 181 and Walker 145, while Gunn made 203 and Barnes 140, not out. This achievement has twice been surpassed in minor matches, and both times in 1882. Playing for the M.C.C. against Leicestershire at Lord's Barnes and Midwinter added 453 runs during their partnership, while for the Orleans club against Rickling Green, Messrs. G. F. Vernon and A. H. Trevor actually scored 605, this last being the most remarkable thing of the kind ever done at cricket. Deducting the interval for luncheon, Gunn and Barnes were batting together for as nearly as possible four hours and forty minutes, and during that time seven Yorkshire bowlers were put on against them. The match was ultimately drawn M. C. C. having scored in the innings 449, with a loss of four wickets. The Surrey County eleven, playing against Oxford University, June 4, in Oxford, compiled no fewer than 419 runs for the loss of only seven wickets. E. J. Diver batted brilliantly for 143, made without a chance. In a game between the college teams the same day in Oxford, 194 runs was put on the tenth wicket, an almost unprecedented batting feat.

The New Switzerland

Ten years ago the Rocky mountains seemed as distant from Ontario as Europe, and far less accessible. That impression has been changed by the construction of the Canadian Pacific railway. Not only by that great work has a vast region been opened up to agriculture, vast coal supplies been made available to commerce, and civilization planted among the most savage wilds of this continent, but a new health resort has been opened up to our people—a new Switzerland brought within five days' journey of Western Ontario. "To the Rocky mountains" for pleasure and physical recuperation is now a feasible expression, and many Canadians, are taking advantage of the trip this season.

THE ROBBER'S CAPTORS

Are Two Half-breeds, Samuel and Sherman Lewis.

$10,000 in Bills, $300 in Silver and a Rifle Recovered.

Special to THE TIMES.

CHEMAINUS, July 18.

About 2 o'clock this morning the robber was captured on his way to Maple Bay, by two half-breeds, named Samuel and Sherman Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft and Angus of the Chemainus saw mill. They were stationed on the road side a short distance apart, when they heard some one emerging from the woods and presently they saw a man come on to the road and proceed on his way, evidently unaware that he was being watched. He had not taken many steps when the order was given to halt. Thereupon the robber threw himself upon the ground, and showed no resistance when told to throw up his arms. Being satisfied, after searching, that he had no firearms, they asked what he had done with the money. He replied that he had thrown it on the roadside. After a few minutes' search they were rewarded by finding a handkerchief containing paper money to the amount of ten thousand dollars. The three hundred dollars of silver coin and his rifle he had secreted in the woods. They then proceeded to Chemainus and were joined by a number of men and started in search of the hidden deposit, after finding which they have returned with the full amount of the silver and valuable papers. The robber is now in custody here and will shortly be taken elsewhere.

RIEL'S TRIAL

To Begin on Monday—The Jurymen—Hon. Wm. McDougall's Opinion.

Jurymen for the Riel trial have been selected from among the white settlers along the line of the Canadian Pacific railway. Half-breeds and other sympathizers of Riel are objecting because the jury will not be mixed. The trial will certainly begin on the 20th inst. The Halifax battalion arrived here from Saskatchewan landing to-day, went into camp here for five days, and will participate in the review of troops by Middleton, to be held here next Tuesday or Wednesday, when a majority of the troops are here. A gigantic demonstration is being arranged for.

Hon. Wm. McDougall, who ranks high as a constitutional lawyer, in a communication to the Ottawa press, expresses doubts of the validity of a court trial of Riel as at present constituted, and contends that a Stipendiary Magistrate of the Northwest Territories has not power without the issue of a special commission from the crown. The indictment is also considered irregular. Although an American citizen, Riel has been indicted as a British subject. The sincerity of the government in bringing Riel to justice is doubted.

The Royal Marriage Next Thursday.

The marriage service at the wedding of Princess Beatrice, on July 23, will be read by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Winchester, and the Dean of Windsor. The Princess will pass the honeymoon at Quarr Abbey, the residence of Lady Cochrane. According to Truth, there is to be ten bridesmaids at the wedding of the Princess, all nieces of the bride—the daughters of the Prince of Wales, of the Duke of Edinburgh, of Prince Christian, and of the Duke of Hesse. The ceremony will begin at 1 o'clock. The bridegroom will be attended at the altar by his unmarried brothers, Prince Alexander of Bulgaria, and Prince Francis of Battenberg. The Princess will be "supported" by the Queen and by the Prince of Wales, and will be given away by her Majesty. It is said that the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Germany will not come to England for the wedding, and that they have refused to allow their younger daughters to act as bridesmaids. The fact is that at Berlin the match is looked upon as a flagrant mesalliance, and this view is taken by most of the Princess' relatives. The Empress Eugenie has been specially invited by the Queen to attend the wedding, but it is doubtful whether she will be present, as she is going to Carlsbad next month, and after her "cure" there she intends to proceed to Arenenburg, her beautiful villa on the Unter See, near Constance.

After Big Bear's Son.

A Battleford special of the 10th inst. says: Mounted police followed the portion of Big Bear's party that deserted the main body when pressed by the troops and crossed the Saskatchewan to get south, and captured many. They are now in the Eagle hills looking for Big Bear's son. They sent in fifteen squaws and children, but kept the men. Seventy-five squaws and children of the original outfit are now on the reserve near here. The police leave to-morrow for Fort Pitt and Frog Lake to gather in hard cases.

The Columbia Salmon Pack.

The July salmon run, which started in pretty heavy the first week of the month, has fallen off, says the Astorian, and it looks now as though the prophecies of a short pack would come true; there are not lacking those who assert that the aggregate will be 200,000 cases below that of last year. The outside estimate is 475,000 cases, and it is said that this is putting it 30,000 cases too high.

More Money Wanted.

Mr. Geo. Stephen was in Ottawa lately, and it was reported that he had delivered another ultimatum to Sir John Macdonald, demanding that the government must find nine million dollars more for his company, and take back six million acres of land which are still unearned. The report, however, is generally discredited.

Our Fisheries.

Honorable Mr. McLellan, in answer to a question put by Mr. E. Crowe Baker, M. P., of this city, said an inspector had been instructed to obtain information in regard to the value of British Columbia fisheries with a view of taking steps necessary to their protection and promotion.

THE WIDE WORLD.

THIS DAY'S DESPATCHES.

The War-like Rumors and Speculators.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, July 18.—A Sun's cablegram from London says: The Berlin papers show, by undisputable evidence, that the war-like rumors and telegrams, though coming from many different places, all emanated from one source, and were inspired by one set of conspirators with the sole object of speculation. The exposure shows the headquarters of the conspiracy to be at Berlin, but its agents work on every bourse in Europe. Forged accounts of hostile Russian movements were telegraphed to London papers, and the pompous and trustwing tone of the latter was depended upon to do the rest.

Russians Determined to take Herat

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Despatches received from Paris this afternoon report that the French Foreign office has received information which shows conclusively that the Russians are determined on seizing Herat that the marching of Russian troops now going on at Zulfikar Pass is for that purpose. At a cabinet council now being held the Russo-Afghan boundary question is the subject of the cabinet's consideration.

The Ameer Decorated.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Proclamation of the Ameer of Afghanistan announcing the receipt by him of the decoration of the Star of India and declaring that he was entitled to aid from the Indian army, if necessary, was issued at Herat. The Ameer in his proclamation has ordered ammunition to Herat to celebrate his investure with the order.

Another Fatality From a Misplaced Switch.

Special to THE TIMES.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The express train from Atlantic City on the west Jersey railroad ran off the track at New Field station this morning. The engine was demolished and the engineer, George Murphy, so seriously injured that he expired in a short time. A number of passengers were slightly injured. The engineer's brave conduct in remaining at his post averted more disastrous results. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch.

Secretary Manning to Propose New Changes.

Special to THE TIMES.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Sec. Manning has prepared and is sending out a circular letter to manufacturers and others interested in the industrial arts, stating that investigation proves that tariff changes are necessary and that he intends changing ad valorem duties to specific. Information is sought to be laid before Congress in reference to the present customs system, and where reformation is desired. It asks information as to the relative cost of manufacturing in this country.

Heated Term in New York.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The weather here to-day was sultry and close; the thermometer at noon was ninety in the shade. Up to that hour to-day six cases of sun stroke were reported at the health office. Reports this week show 1019 death in the city against 870 in the corresponding week last year. Of diarrhœa cases there were 643, being children under 5 years of age.

London Money Market Unfavorable.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—The stock market closed dull this afternoon. The political situation is again regarded on the market as unfavorable. American railway securities are firm to-day with advancing prices.

Roach Assigns.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, July 18.—John Roach, the famous ship builder has made an assignment to-day to Geo. W. Quintard and Geo. Weld, with a preference of about $122,000.

London Consols and Money.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Consols opened at 99 3-16 and at 1 p. m. were quoted at 99⅝. 1:30 p. m.—Consols, 99 3-16. 2 p. m.—Consols, 99¼.

Special to THE TIMES.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The operating room of the Western Union Telegraph Co. was burned at 1:15 o'clock this a. m. Connections in all directions are destroyed.

A Carnival of Deaths.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, July 18.—There were 1329 new cases of cholera and 624 deaths reported yesterday in Spain.

The Body Exhumed.

The body of the Chinaman who is supposed to have died under suspicious circumstances, was exhumed yesterday afternoon by Mr. T. Story, undertaker, in the presence of Coroner Johnson and a jury—Messrs. Worth, Reed, Carmichael, Levi, VanHorst and Siewaul. Dr. Praeger held a post mortem and will submit the contents of the stomach to an analytical inspection with the view of ascertaining if poison was administered. Dr. Ash was in attendance on behalf of the Chinese. The inquest will be continued until Monday.

What is being Done in the Matter.

Chinamen residing in this province receive all the care and protection from the government which a father would extend to his children; in return they are expected to observe and obey the laws, and otherwise conduct themselves in a proper manner. On that hypothesis, when Chinamen commit any overt act they ought to be summarily dealt with. For that reason the authorities, if they are not already doing so, ought to enquire into the trouble which occurred at Oyster Bay some days ago. Celestials must be taught that they cannot take the law into their own hands with impunity, that if they have any just cause for complaint, if they will make proper representation, the law will give them their right. We do hope where it is found that, especially those employed on public works, have threatened or made attacks on men in whose charge they are, they may be punished severely, so that it may deter others from committing like breaches of the peace.

WAR AND THE TORY PARTY.

Recent dispatches from Europe indicate that the war cloud is still hovering around London, Paris and St. Petersburg. It now appears that a conflict is inevitable, and the sooner it takes place the quicker will all the impending troubles be ended. A Toronto contemporary, The Week, discusses the question in a recent issue. In relation to the conveyance of torpedoes to this province it says it is "the last of the different cases devised by an ingenious optimism for our new national railway. But the freight which would go into the pockets of the company, and not into those of the people, would be a poor set-off against the consequences to Canadian commerce of the war in which the torpedoes would be used. To the Russian war would soon be added a French war; for it has already been made evident that the opportunity of trampling on Great Britain would not be let slip by her inveterate enemy; and it is the merest vaporing to pretend that England, with her forces dispersed over half the globe by the necessity of defending her dependencies, would be able to keep the seas clear of the cruisers of the two maritime powers. In the interest of Canada, therefore, as well as those of Great Britain and humanity, we must all watch with anxiety the effect of the change of Ministry in England on the Russian question. In opposition, LORD SALISBURY proclaimed that Russia was morally a bankrupt or a swindler, and the noble Lord who is now a Minister for India outran his leader in reckless violence, closing a torrent of Billingsgate with an accusation against the Russians of "lying as only a Russian can." This language of course was held merely for the patriotic purpose of embarrassing the late government in its negotiations, and will now be at once disclaimed or explained away. LORD SALISBURY has already performed the process. Yet in the bosom of the Czar and his councillors there must reign a more than diplomatic calm if the memory of insults so gross and so recent does not render the completion of the settlement more difficult and envenom any future dispute to which Afghan restlessness or the pugnacy of Russian officers on the frontier may give rise. War has always been welcome to the Tory party because it lends ascendancy to a military spirit which is congenial to political reaction and diverts the mind of the people from domestic reforms; in truth this, not alarm about the Indian frontier, much less hatred of despotism, is the mainspring of Tory hostility to Russia. That the court desires a war policy is plain, and LORD SALISBURY is the Minister of the Court. But in the nation at large a number of people have talked themselves or allowed themselves to be talked into the fatalistic belief that a struggle with Russia is the decree of destiny; forgetting that fifty years ago Russia was regarded as a friend, especially by the Conservative classes, and that the present feud is mainly the work of three men, LORD PALMERSTON, and LORD STRATFORD DE REDCLIFFE, and LOUIS NAPOLEON, the motives of the two first of whom were largely personal, while the last sought a halo of glory for his own upstart dynasty and the prop of British alliance for his tottering throne. If England is resolutely bent on barring out Russia from an open sea, a collision is fated to come. Otherwise there is no fate in the question; the agencies which threaten once more to fill the world with havoc and to ruin Canadian commerce for an object utterly alien to our concerns are simply the passions, the follies and the sinister interests of man."

No one has yet been able to demonstrate any practical advantage that could come to Canada from the adoption of Imperial Federation. But it is apparent that it would involve gravely increased responsibilities on our part, with a partial abrogation of the power of self-government which we now possess. In Canada its chief advocates are found altogether among those who desire old world decorations and titles, no matter at what cost to the masses of the people they may be obtained.

THE DIRTY SCHOOL OF POLITICS.

The speech of HON. MR. BLAKE on the Northwest insurrection was deliberate and non-committal in its character. He made no wild assertions; in fact he scrupulously refrained from doing so. It contained nothing of the demagogue, actuated only by a desire to embarass the government. He contented himself throughout with adducing evidence in support of his charge that the government had been guilty of apathy and pure neglect; and for six hours he continued in his presentation of a chain of evidence drawn from petitions, resolutions and utterances by prominent half-breeds and others, arranged and grouped in such a masterly manner as only a great lawyer could do. Naturally the ministerial supporters and the press on that side took exception to much that was embraced in MR. BLAKE'S speech. This, of course, is party politics, and is what we may expect, as party lines are now drawn in Canada. SIR JOHN MACDONALD replied to the leader of the opposition in an exceedingly bitter, vindictive speech. It is to be regretted that in his declining years the premier cannot address himself to any assemblage without charging disloyalty to the Liberal party. It was asserted by his opponents that the disloyalty howl would form the main features of SIR JOHN'S defence. They were not astray. A cry that has stood him in service since 1854 could not be readily thrown overboard now. To say the least, considering the quantity of dirty linen in the Conservative camp requiring washing on the disloyalty question, extending back as far as 1843, it ill becomes the gallant Knight at the head of the government to resort to such an hollow and unwarranted species of political warfare. In connection with that debate, if the Montreal Herald (ministerial), is to be relied on, there is a very unpleasant story current in Ottawa. Our contemporary says: It will be remembered that in the debate on the Northwest territories motion of censure, SIR John MACDONALD produced two letters written by MR. BLAKE to an ex-mounted policeman who desired to come to Ottawa to give certain information in his possession, MR. BLAKE'S letters were courteous, but in a measure guarded. He could not ask for railway passes, as his correspondent wished, nor could he assist him in obtaining a Government survey contract. As for his information, he would be glad to receive it, and if not in Toronto shortly, would ask a friend, in whose discretion he could trust, to meet his correspondent. Of course as the latter desired it, his name should not be disclosed or used to his disadvantage. It was of course not only BLAKE'S right but his duty to obtain all the information possible about this half-breed rebellion, and on receipt of the letter from Toronto he took the course which a gentleman in his position should take. It is now asked: —how came SIR JOHN to be in possession of these letters? and on further enquiry one hears that BROWN (BLAKE'S correspondent) received some government employment. If this is so no amount of asseveration on SIR JOHN'S part will discredit the story that this was a disgraceful trap, which failed for the simple reason that the man whom it was sought to entrap so shapes his public conduct that he may have nothing to be ashamed of. No one will believe, without very convincing evidence, that SIR JOHN MACDONALD would stoop to instigate any such disreputable dodge, but that some "cogging, cozening slave to get an office has devised this slander" is firmly maintained.

The following are the letters and speak for themselves:

"OTTAWA, May 7, 1885.

"SIR,—I have your letter of the 6th and should be very glad indeed to learn from you any facts connected with the management of affairs in the Northwest Territories. I would willingly comply with your request for a pass to Ottawa if it were in my power, but I have no means of procuring railway passes. It is possible, though by no means certain, that I may be in Toronto for a few hours within a few days, and if so, I would try to arrange an interview with you, or if I am unable to manage that, I can arrange an interview with a confidential friend of mine, who would note down for my own ear only all that you should choose to communicate, if this would be agreeable to you. "Yours faithfully,

"EDWARD BLAKE.

"J. E. Brown, Esq."

"OTTAWA, May 12, 1885.

"DEAR SIR,—I have your letter and will ask a friend to make an appointment with you. I will take care, as you desire that your name shall not be used to your prejudice. I will not disclose it until you have had ample opportunity of securing an appointment for the surveys this year, if you are fortunate enough to do so, but I fancy there will not be a great deal of surveying done. I should gladly assist you in procuring employment if it were in my power; but I have no means of forwarding your interests in this respect. With thanks for your good wishes.

"I am, yours faithfully,

"EDWARD BLAKE.

"J. E. Brown, Esq."

We think no unbiased person will find anything improper in these letters. If a trap was laid for MR. BLAKE it failed in its purpose.

In discussing the labor question the Chicago Tribune says that if we must adopt the exclusion of foreign labor as a protective measure it were well to begin with the high-priced goods, that being the principle of action advocated by those who want us to discriminate against the product of foreign labor instead of the labor itself.

The time has passed, says the Philadelphia Press, for journalism to lead public opinion arbitrarily on any question. Intelligent and independent journalism can do much to aid public sentiment in reaching intelligent conclusions; but it can be done only by honestly and intelligently reflecting the honesty and intelligence of the people.

NOW A FAMOUS MAN.

No one in the history of journalism, within our knowledge, acquired fame at one bound, as the editor of the Pall Mall Gazette has just achieved. To-day he is the one grand figure in journalism. He has dictated English foreign policy of late more than any other man. He is of the "slasher" type, full of earnestness. He met CHINESE GORDON at Dover, talked over the then situation in Egypt, returned to London and wrote the article which compelled the government to send GORDON to the Soudan, and once there he raised such a row that the government had to send WOLSELEY to GORDON'S rescue. He got up a great scare recently as to the condition of the English navy. He is strongly for Russia, and is supposed to be a powerful factor in that section of the Liberals opposed to war with Russia. MR. STEAD is about 40 years of age, a slim, wiry, nervous man with push and energy stamped upon his brow. The son of a Congregationalist minister, he was born at Howden-on-Tyne, and at first floated on the world as junior clerk in a shipping office. As a boy he was passionately fond of reading, especially of works having reference to the history of the country, and after quitting work for the day, it was his custom to retire to his room and study up the great events of the empire. So diligent was young STEAD in this respect that he won the prize offered by a local paper for the best essay on OLIVER CROMWELL, against a large number of competitors. As he matured from youth to manhood, his literary talents developed and were admired and appreciated outside of his local circle, so much so that he was offered and accepted a position on the Northern Echo, a daily published at Newcastle. From junior reporter he rose to the position of editor, and during the last general election he rendered valuable assistance to MR. GLADSTONE'S cause by his vigorous and pointed articles against the DISRAELIAN administration. His articles in the Echo stirred up all the border burghs in favor of the grand old man, and after the victorious campaign, MR. GLADSTONE expressed his appreciation of MR. STEAD'S assistance in a kindly worded note. This was the turning point of STEAD'S career. When JOHN MORLEY accepted the editorship of the Pall Mall Gazette he chose MR. STEAD as his first lieutenant, and so faithfully and successfully did MR. STEAD fulfil his duties that when MR. MORLEY resigned the editorial chair the proprietor of the Gazette made MR. STEAD MR. MORLEY'S successor. This position MR. STEAD has ever since occupied, with what success we leave it for our readers to judge.

THE bold experiment of the Pall Mall Gazette has become a matter of national interest and almost a political question in England. The matter was discussed in Parliament; the government threatening to prosecute the publishers. The Gazette was defiant, and knowing too well that the evidence criminating persons in high places was overwhelming, the government quietly dropped the matter. It is a curious illustration of the working of the British mind that the indignation, both of the government and the public, should be directed against the exposer rather than the author of the infamous practices described by the Pall Mall Gazette.

WORTH, the famous man milliner of Paris, has created a genuine sensation by circulating a list of fashionable dead beats. The refusal of credit to such would probably enable milliners both in Paris and other cities to pay better wages to the over-worked employees, who still represent the class of whom HOOD sang the song of the shirt. This being so, a British Columbia Milliners' Association might find use for itself in the circulation of lists of dead beats similar to the lists which WORTH has inaugurated.

THE success of the iron workers' amalgamated association has caused the various associations to talk of consolidating. Should they do so the organization would have nine to ten thousand members. It is proposed then, by an assessment of a few dollars per member, to raise money to start a co-operative glass works near TIBBY'S glass works in Pittsburg, which are now trying to freeze out some striking flint glass workers.

APPLICATION will be made by the Dominion government through the British government for the extradition of JAMES ROBINSON, the wholesale boot and shoe dealer who cleared out of St. John, N. B., in May last, after swindling banks in that city out of $60,000 on forged paper, who has been arrested in Mexico.

"THE Stop-Gap Government" is the expressive description by which LORD SALISBURY'S Cabinet is generally known in England.

ROBUST HEALTH

Is not always enjoyed by those who seem to possess it. The taint of corrupted blood may be secretly undermining the constitution. In time, the poison will certainly show its effects, and with all the more virulence the longer it has been allowed to permeate the system. Each pimple, sty, boil, skin disorder and sense of unnatural lassitude, or languor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglect.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to eradicate the taint of hereditary disease and the special corruptions of the blood. It is the only alterative that is sufficiently powerful to thoroughly cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial impurities and the pollution of Contagious Diseases. It also neutralizes the poisons left by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and enables rapid recuperation from the enfeeblement and debility caused by these diseases.

Myriads of Cures

Achieved by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, in the past forty years, are attested, and there is no blood disease, at all possible of cure, that will not yield to it. Whatever the ailments of this class, and wherever found, from the scurvy of the Arctic circle to the "veldt-sores" of South Africa, this remedy has afforded health to the sufferers by whom it was employed. Druggists everywhere can cite numerous cases, within their personal knowledge, of remarkable cures wrought by it, where all other treatment had been unavailing. People will do well to

Trust Nothing Else

than AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Numerous crude mixtures are offered to the public as "blood purifiers," which, only allure the patient with the pretense of many cheap doses, and with which it is folly to experiment while disease is steadily becoming more deep-seated and difficult of cure. Some of these mixtures do much lasting harm. Bear in mind that the only medicine that can radically purify the vitiated blood is

A FOX CAUGHT.

[London Truth.]

Mr. James Fox was the junior partner in the firm of Plumley & Fox, the principal solicitors in the somewhat dead-alive old cathedral town of Slumborough. He was a smart, well set-up young man, of two or three and thirty, with carefully trimmed black whiskers, a silken manner, and an unlimited flow of more or less entertaining small talk. Hence it came to pass that he was an exceedingly popular man among the ladies of Slumborough, both old and young, and, had his views lain in the direction of matrimony, he would have had small difficulty in inducing any bashful damsel or frisky widow to share his lot. But the handsome solicitor was ambitious; his share in the business did not at present bring him in more than a moderate income, and he had long ago determined that when he married he must consider not only beauty, but more solid advantages.

Heiresses, however, were not plentiful in Slumborough, and so, although Mr. Fox's attentions frequently fluttered a virgin bosom, he was careful not to commit himself too far, and not even the local gossips could fairly say of him that he had compromised a reputation or knowingly raised false hopes. There was, indeed, one young lady who had made a deep impression upon the solicitor's heart, but she was the daughter of a county magnate with whom poor Mr. Fox was not even on visiting terms. He had met her at the annual hunt ball, she had danced twice with him, for Mr. Fox was an excellent waltzer; but her mother had doubtless warned her against him, for when next they met, some six weeks after. ward, Miss Laquerton passed the unfortunate man without so much as a bow. Miss Laquerton, however, was lovely and rich, and Mr. Fox was not a man to be easily discouraged. He knew that if he could only afford to cut the office and blossom into a landed proprietor, he would have just as good a chance with her as anybody else; so he waited patiently in the hopes of one day discovering the road which leads to fortune and success.

The firm of Plumley & Fox was a highly respectable and old-fashioned concern, which avoided litigation and kept almost entirely to family business. Plumley was a fairly-good lawyer, but Fox's legal knowledge was of the most limited character, and he was much too lazy to take the trouble to increase it. So it came to be understood between them that while Plumley did the office work, Fox kept the clients in good humor by calling on them apropos of nothing, and amusing them with his jokes and stories. This business was technically termed "keeping the connection together," and it suited Mr. Fox very well indeed. It was while he was thus keeping the connection together that Mr. Fox made the acquaintance of a certain rich old widow lady, named Mrs. Johnson, and so well did he play his cards that before long Plumley & Fox became Mrs. Johnson's family solicitors, land agents, and confidential advisers. The firm made a pretty good thing out of Mrs. Johnson. In accordance with the usual arrangement, Plumley transacted the business, and Fox became a constant visitor at her house, and worked his way into her good graces by his wonderful powers of amusing conversation. There was yet another accomplishment which stood our solicitor in very good stead, and this was an accurate knowledge of chemistry and medicine, which he had picked up as a boy in the shop of his uncle, the chemist. The horrible smells young Fox had created in his experiments and the ugly stains he had made on his hands determined him to forsake medicine for the law, but he never entirely forgot his early experiences. He could talk fluently about every known drug and disease, and about a great many which had not yet been discovered. He diagnosed Mrs. Johnson's symptoms at least as accurately as MacBolus, the Scotch doctor, and would even have prescribed for her had not the stalwart Scot angrily threatened to lick him if he did so. But he maintained a very prominent place in the old lady's affections, and it began to be whispered about that he had an excellent chance of succeeding to her very considerable property.

The disposal of Mrs. Johnson's money was a matter which had long furnished speculation of unfailing interest to the town of Slumborough, and filled many a yawning gap in conversation at afternoon teas. Mrs. Johnson had but one relative in the world, Miss Lizzie Roberts, the daughter of her late sister. This young lady, however, it was agreed, had not the slightest chance of being mentioned in her aunt's will. A handsome, well-bred girl, she was left at her parents' death to make her own way in the world, inheriting nothing but the battle of life and the dislike of Mrs. Johnson, who had not seen the child since it quitted its baby clothes. This strange antipathy was traceable, as some people said, to times long gone by, when Mr. Roberts, Lizzie's father, then renowned for his manly beauty, had been an assiduous visitor at the house of Mrs. Johnson's parents. She being the elder daughter, and taking all his attentions for herself, had felt it keenly as a personal insult when her sister dared "to snatch him away," and even later on, after having made a much more brilliant match herself, she never could forgive this early defeat. Death even had not buried the grudge, which not unnaturally passed from mother to child.

How far this saying may have been true or not, one thing was certain: poor Lizzie Roberts had not the ghost of a chance of ever seeing a tin penny from her aunt's money-box; her claims were clearly quite out of the question. There remained, then, only Miss Nelly Brown, Mrs. Johnson's lady companion, and Mr. James Fox.

Mr. James Fox knew from his partner, who had cautioned him in a friendly way that Mrs. Johnson was not going to divide her fortune, but would leave the whole of it to her "trust friend," though she had evidently not yet made her mind up as to who deserved that title. More than once had Mr. Plumley been suddenly summoned to draw up a new will, somelight an annoyance as a cold cup of tea, having caused her to destroy the one in Miss Nelly's favor. Then two days' neglect on the part of Mr. Fox, and a constant supply of hot tea at the hands of Miss Nelly again reinstated this lady in Mrs. Johnson's good graces. Mr. Fox, therefore, had good cause for anxiety as to what would be the exact state of affairs when the old lady was finally called upon to join the majority.

"With such an old woman," he said to himself, "who is ready to make a new will any day and to burn it the next, there is no dependence, one's future hangs upon a whim; a remedy must be found. The safest thing would, of course, be to make love to Miss Nelly; she is rather thirtyish and altogether not very attractive; still, if she were to get all the money, she would be anything but undesirable."

So Mr. James Fox set to work at once to make himself agreeable to Miss Brown, yet without going too far; for he had by no means forgotten Miss Laquerton, but he felt it was better to have two strings to his bow, and therefore he determined to do his best to keep Miss Nelly in good humor. This lady, however, was not so easily satisfied as the solicitor expected, for now he had once begun to pay her attentions, she wanted a decided offer of marriage, and not being able to get it, she took refuge in a stratagem. This consisted in suddenly making the discovery that Mrs. Johnson's health was in absolute want of some German waters; in fact, she decided that it was quite dangerous for her to spend the spring in England, with all the changes of heat and cold. The old lady was therefore soon persuaded to yield to such tender solicitude, and away the couple went, leaving Mr. James Fox in a rather awkward dilemma. What was he to do? If he wrote cool letters to Miss Nelly, she would be offended, and all his chances would be lost in the event of her inheriting Mrs. Johnson's property; on the other hand, if he played the part of a lover, he committed himself, and gave her the materials for a breach-of-promise case should the good lady die, when his name only figured in her will, and should he then turn his attention to Miss Laquerton. What, then, could he do?

The worthy Fox was baffled for the moment, but after deep deliberation he hit upon a great idea which his chemical studies suggested to him. Chuckling to himself, he went to a chemist's shop, purchased several drugs, and mixed and remixed them till a magnificent black ink was produced, which had the grand advantage that in about ten days after being committed to paper it would fade away, without leaving the slightest trace. Emboldened by the happy result of his experiments, he became once the most tender and zealous correspondent any woman could wish for. His letters, in fact, overflowed with promises of everlasting devotion. Miss Nelly beamed with joy; for she was now convinced how true and unselfish was the attachment of her admirer.

Under such circumstances it was not surprising that the German waters speedily did Mrs. Johnson so much good that her careful nurse considered that the cure could be shortened, and accordingly the couple returned to England much earlier than had been expected.

Whether, however, the waters had really disagreed with the old lady, or something else had up et her, was never quite clear, but soon after their return to England her health and strength began seriously to fail. She complained bitterly that Miss Nelly had induced her to undertake an unnecessary and useless journey, and that ever since she had neglected her altogether. The end of it was that one day, in the height of her anger, she burnt the then existing will, and made Mr. James Fox her sole heir to everything she possessed. This decision seemed to have exhausted her remaining energy, for she died not many days after.

Mr. Fox, who had been apprised of the state of affairs by his partner and friend, almost lost his senses with joy; still his excitement did not prevent his investing some money in hat bands and crape, and looking as mournful as if the sorrows of the whole world rested upon his shoulders. Miss Nelly, too, almost melted away in tears, and could only be comforted by "her Jamie," as she now called Mr. Fox. But the latter seemed to have turned quite dull with grief. He did not appear to understand her at all, and day by day as she became more demonstrative he grew less affectionate. The afternoon before the funeral Miss Nelly was extremely broken-hearted, and amid her sobs remarked how comfortable and happy she had always been with her late dear friend. To her astonishment Mr. Fox attempted to comfort her by saying with cool civility, "I hope you may soon meet again with such a happy home as you have had here till now."

On hearing this Miss Nelly's tears suddenly dried up, and with eyes dilated with astonishment and anger, she cried: "It is you whom I expect to make me this happy home!"

Mr. Fox, however, simply shrugged his shoulders, saying: "I do not deny that I may have once had such ideas, but of late I have grown wiser. Everything alters in this world; why then should not our opinions do the same? That is what we call progress!"

Upon this he bowed and left Miss Nelly crying and fainting in an arm chair.

He did not hear anything of her till a few days later, when a gentleman called upon him saying that he had been intrusted with with Miss Nelly Brown's affairs, and suggesting that perhaps Mr. Fox, before matters went further, would prefer making some private arrangement about his breach of promise of marriage with his client.

"And what proof of that promise has Miss Brown except her saying so?" asked Mr. Fox.

"Oh," answered the young man, "I have seen a box full of letters from you."

"Have you read them?" continued Mr. Fox, sarcastically.

"Not yet," replied the other; "but I have seen the box."

"Well, you had better go and read them first before you take any further steps, and if you can find a single line from me to Miss Brown I am willing to let her have ample damages without their being awarded by a court of law."

There was something so diabolical about Mr. Fox that the young defender of innocence found it best to retire for the present, leaving his opponent to rub his hands triumphantly and build castles in the air about the country seat and the horses and carriages he was going to buy in order to dazzle Miss Laquerton, whom he felt justified in seriously thinking about.

Miss Nelly had meanwhile been informed of the conversation at Mr. Fox's office, and, with an indignant exclamation about "such incredible untruths," she went to fetch her letter-box. There, sure enough, were the letters, all in little packets, neatly tied up with blue and pink ribbons; but, strange to say, she could not see an address; and, oh, Heavens! when she undid the packets they contained nothing but paper—all white paper without a single word on it. The wily lawyer had evidently deceived her by some demoniacal trick.

The shock was so great to the poor love-sick lady that she had scarcely the courage to show herself when the will was to be read; but she rallied at last, hoping against hope that it still might be in her favor, when she could treat with scorn and contempt her faithless lover and his paltry damages.

Mr. Fox, although he considered himself already master of the house and everything in it, felt considerably excited on the morning of the day appointed for the reading of the will, and when Mr. Plumley, as chief executor, sat down and slowly got his spectacles out, his junior partner became so faint and his heart fluttered to such an extent that he fancied all his, hopes and beautiful castles in the air were crumbling away as in a dream. Why did not his old friend at once read the document? Why did he make the room so unbearably long? Why did he continue to stare first at the paper in his hand, then at those around him, and then once more at the paper without uttering a single word; and then at last, when he did speak, why did he stammer, "I—I do not know; I see nothing—in fact, in the same paper, but——"

Could it be? Yes, sure enough there was the paper on which the will had been made out, but there was nothing upon it; it was merely a blank sheet!

"Good heaven! With what infernal pen write out that will?" burst out at last Mr. Fox.

"With what ink?" repeated the old gentleman indignantly, "with your ink. As I found the inkstand up stairs dry, and the old lady was in such a deadly hurry, I rushed down my self to get some, and seeing your bag in the hall I took from it the little inkstand which you always carry about."

Mr. Fox turned deadly pale, and without saying another word vanished like the wind, before anybody had found time to ask for an explanation. When the rest of the composed themselves again, Mr. Plumley said: "I know that the testatrix has destroyed all former wills, so that there is none at all in existence, and, by law, therefore, the property will go to the next of kin. I know, also, that Mrs. Johnson had no relatives whatever except Miss Lizzie Roberts. She is consequently sole heiress."

THE LITTLE LAND.

[Robert Louis Stevenson.]

When at home alone I sit
And am very tired of it,
I have just to shut my eyes
To go sailing through the skies
To go sailing far away
To the pleasant Land of Play;
To the fairy land afar,
Where the little people are,
Where the clover tops are trees,
And the rain pools are the seas,
And the leaves like little ships,
Sail about on tiny trips;
And above the daisy tree
Through the grasses,
High o'er head the bumble-boo
Hums and passes.

In that forest to and fro
I can wander, I can go;
See the spider and the fly,
And the ants go marching by
Carrying parcels with their feet,
Down the green and grassy street.
I can in the sorrel sit
Where the lady bird alit,
I can climb the jointed grass;
And on high
See the greater swallows pass
In the sky,
And the round sun rolling by
Heeding no such things as I.

Through that forest I can pass
Till, as in a looking-glass,
Humming fly and daisy tree
And my tiny self I see,
Painted very clear and neat
On the rain-pool at my feet.
Should a leaflet come to hand
Drifting near to where I stand,
Straight I'll board that tiny boat,
Round that rain-pool sea to float.

Little thoughtful creatures sit
On the grassy coasts of it,
Little things with lovely eyes
See me sailing with surprise.
Some are clad in armor green—
(These have sure to battle been)—
Some are pied with every hue,
Black and crimson, gold and blue;
Some have wings and swift are gone,
But they all look kindly on.
When my eyes I once again
Open and see all things plain,
High, bare walls, a great bare floor;
Great big knobs on drawer and door;
Great big people perched on chairs,
Stitching tucks and mending tears,
Each a lill that I could climb,
And talking nonsense all the time—
O, dear me,
That I could be
A sailor on the rain-pool sea,
A climber in the clover trees,
And just come back, a sleepy head,
Late at night to go to bed.

The Coliseum To Be Outdone.

[Eugene Field in Chicago News.]

Much commotion was occasioned in local naval circles recently by a rumor that the Russian corvet Tchuksffsky, which has been at anchor in our harbor for a month, had received sealed orders to set sail at once for Kenosha. The British man-of-war Albert Edward, which has been watching the corvet ever since the Afghan complications arose, was the first to hear of the rumor, and immediately made preparations to follow the Russian vessel whither she sailed. Thousands of our best citizens went out on the government pier to witness the threatened engagement, but the Russian corvet gave no indications of leaving the harbor, and after three hours of great suspense it was officially announced by Petrovitch Smokoff, the resident consul, that the previous rumor was utterly groundless.

There has arisen in the midst of us such a universal desire to witness a naval battle that two enterprising theatrical managers have entered into negotiations with the commanders of the Russian corvet and British man-of-war, respectively, for a grand naval encounter between the two vessels. It is proposed to erect in our harbor a temporary pine structure large enough to surround the ships and give them plenty of space for maneuvering. On the four sides of the structure will be private boxes, stalls, and galleries, with a seating capacity for 30,000 people, and by making this ample provision the price of a seat will be merely nominal.

The complaint heretofore has always been that the cost of naval engagements was too great to admit of this species of amusement ever becoming popular. We hope to be able to felicitate Chicago upon being the first to inaugurate a reform in this direction, and we certainly approve the effort which is now being made to place the luxury of witnessing a first-class naval battle within the means of even the poorer classes.

The Ameer of Afghanistan.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

We are told by a French traveler that at dinner the ameer drinks an inordinate quantity of tea. He takes neither sugar nor milk with it, but a little lime. He is not given much to physical exertion, and, indeed, he leads a somewhat sedentary life, devoting many hours each day listening to the stories of his many spies. He is very fond of describing his own adventures, and at other times he will prefer to play chess, or, as he considers himself a good musician, will perform some of the national ballads on the ratab or Afghan guitar. A light repast of sweets, fruit and tea is then served and at 10 o'clock the guests leave. Wine and spirits he never touches, but he smokes a good deal and even in public.

In one way or another he has removed all the men of note who were supposed under the old regime to possess a hardly less potent voice than the ameer in deciding important matters in Afghan policy. His object has been to get rid of every man of wealth, influence or position within his territories, in the belief that they both detract from his dignity and serve as the means of intrigue against his power. In short he is a believer in the Oriental fashion of decapitating all the tallest of the poppies.

Woman's Faith in Man.

[Helen Wilmans in Woman's World.]

Men come home utterly discouraged; their best efforts have failed, self-esteem has sunk within them until hope is quite extinguished. What does a woman do under such circumstances? Just what she ought to do. She revives his waning manhood by praise. She shows him every particle of her own loving recognition of all there is in him. She who knows him best of any, whose love has never admitted the existence of his faults, tells him in her own way how good and how truly great he is. He may be neither good nor great, except as her love and confidence endow him with goodness and greatness, but the endowment is genuine; the man arouses to find himself the possessor of gifts he hardly imagined, and with a new-born strength, goes to work in a way that conquers obstacles, and makes his life a success.

Gloomy indeed must the household be where a woman's divine faith in man is inoperative; where it fails to infuse and inspire him with the courage that makes him feel himself the peer of other men.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters. I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave.

Poverty and Suffering.

I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. The Daily Times.

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON EXCEPT SUNDAY.

Victoria, Saturday, July 18, 1885.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—The Columbian reports that the lowest tender for the Victoria coal is $27,000.

—The telephone line to Port Moody has been repaired and put in good working order.

—The ground in Chilliwhack and other sections of the mainland on Tuesday last was moistured by genial showers of rain.

—Mr. L. H. Jones, representing Messrs Langley & Co., is at present visiting Eagle Pass and Farwell.

The Sockeyes are going up the Fraser river in considerable numbers, and some of the canneries are busy packing.

—Business in New Westminster is somewhat better, and the citizens still entertain sanguine hopes of an early boom.

—The Barbara Boscowitz is due from the north. She will bring down a large consignment of salmon.

—On Sunday and Monday last the temperature at Kamloops was 100 in the shade. Rain followed, cooling the atmosphere.

—The work of constructing the telegraph along the line of the C. P. R. keeps pace with railway building.

—The Idaho is five and a half days out from San Francisco. F. C. says the Noah's Ark could sail as fast ten thousand years ago.

—It is said that Mr. Al. Briggs, late purser of the steamer R. P. Rithet, will shortly place a boat on the east coast route, in opposition to the Amelia.

—Messrs. N. Shakespeare, M. P., and E. C. Baker, M. P., of this city, have been elected honorary members of St. George's Society, Ottawa.

—The walls of the new New Westminster gaol will soon be completed, and the building begins to present quite a striking appearance.

—The government office, Kamloops, is in receipt for the month of June: Assessed taxes, $1,576.54, and provincial revenue, $711.00.

—The Kamloops Sentinel says: We have made inquiry, but cannot learn of the Monops consenting to reduce the rascally high rates upon freight. Does Onderdonk & Co. own the government?

—A man named M. J. Murphy, of Halifax, was found drowned in the Eagle River last Monday. It is supposed the drowning was accidental.

—The "gold diggers" around Lillooet and Bridge river are making fair wages. Miners in the Soda Creek vicinity are also getting returns for their labor.

—C. D. Rand has resumed business and has taken an office on Bastion street over Dr. Chipp's where he will carry on business as a real estate broker and insurance agent.

—Mr. Geo. Lindsay, jr., of Saanich, who has been seriously indisposed for some time with an attack of pneumonia, is now convalescent. He has been under the treatment of Dr. Morrison, of this city.

—The Olympian's consignees to-day were: W Jenson, Carne & Munsie, Rowbotham, R Carr, T Earle, J Wilson, S J Pitts, Moore & Co, W H Bennett, S T Brewster, Fell & Co, P Stacey, S Clay, Burns & Co, Marvin & Tilton.

—Parties wanting to insure are referred to the card of the National Insurance Co., of Ireland, for which Mr. W. Monteith is agent. This company was established in 1822, has a capital of $5,000,000, and is in every way a most reliable institution.

—A few days since, Mr. Simms, a teamster in the employ of Van Volkenburgh Bros., was driving along the Clarke road near Port Moody, when suddenly a tree fell, striking one of his horses on the nose. Mr. Simms considers it a fortunate escape for himself.

—L. R. Authier, and W. H. Dyson, of Ontario, spent a few days in Port Moody this week. They are looking up a location for the establishment of woolen mills, and are understood to be favorably impressed with the advantages offered there.

—The Rithet was beached at Chemainus yesterday, and her hull closely inspected to find if any damage had been caused by the recent grounding accident at Port Hammond. It was ascertained that no serious injury has been sustained. The steamer arrived here last night, and left to-day for Yale.

Captain J. A. Clarke has received a second notice from the Dominion Government Agent, demanding him to cede title to about twelve acres of his estate on water front, at Port Moody, together with the improvements thereon, for railway purposes for the consideration of $120. Mr. Clarke has improvementson the said land valued at $5000.

Another Absconder.

A petty official of the Constance left his ship yesterday and has not since been heard of. As he is in default to the paymaster to the extent of about $900, there is a painful impression among the officers that he has gone to the other side of the line with no intention of returning.

Consistency. Thou art a Jewel!

Not possessed, however, in superabundance by the James Bay governmental quartette. The bindery trick emanates from it with very bad grace, considering the plea set up for young Allen's dismissal from the position of road superintendent in Lillooet, being that he was a relative of an M. P. P.

Charged with Stealing Liquor.

Captain John Morris, who has been employed on the Western Slope, was arrested to-day and lodged in gaol on a charge of stealing a quantity of liquor, the property of Captain J. Irving. An application was made for bail, which will probably be granted.

A Chinese Missionary.

Rev. J. B. Hartwell arrived on the Olympian to-day. He has been a Chinese missionary for twenty-seven years, and has spent many years away from all civilization except that of the Chinese. He speaks the Chinese language nearly as well as a native. He will preach tomorrow morning in Temperance Hall. The doctor's visit is in the interest of Evangelical work among the Chinese population of the North Pacific coast, under the auspices of the American Baptist Home Mission Society.

The Troubadours.

The Casino Troubadours were greeted with a full house last night, when they gave the charming opera of the "Lovely Galatea." The troupe only consists of four persons, but notwithstanding that fact the performance was admirably sustained throughout. Miss Lester's, pose in the statuesque scenes was so true to art as to deceive the eyes of the audience. Her singing was none the less faultless, and hearty applause was called forth upon the conclusion of the more difficult songs. Mr. Stephens, in the role of the Jewish pawnbroker, was simply perfect. Louis and Miss Edgar proved able lieutenants, their roles being well received. The prison song from Il Trovatore, by Miss Lester and Mr. Stephens, concluded a first class entertainment. To-night "Galatea" will be given.

THE HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

The Desperado Captured—How the Robbery was Accomplished.

The daring robbery of Bell, Larkin & Patterson's paymaster, Mr. Geo. Riley, yesterday took place about half a mile north of Chemainus. Mr. Riley was riding in his vehicle, in company with a man and a boy, and had the money, about $10,000, in a satchel. Suddenly they came upon a man standing on an elevation, who presented a repeating rifle and ordered them to dismount instantly or he would fire. The robber wore a mask and was enveloped in a blanket. Mr. Riley, of course, pulled up, and when about to descend on the opposite side of the carriage, he was ordered to get down on the side next to the desperado, and as there was no mistaking the man's intentions, this order was complied with. All three got out of the carriage, the rifle in the meantime being kept steadily levelled at them. Mr. Riley was next ordered to put the satchel containing the money on the road, and then he drove on. This being done, and after going a few hundred yards, Mr. Riley took to the woods and making a short detour was back to Chemainus in about twenty minutes after the robbery.

He immediately gave the alarm, and the people turned out and searched the country all around. The Indians were also enlisted in the search, which has been kept up unremittingly ever since. The satchel stolen contained about $300 in silver, which, it is to be presumed, the robber would not carry any great distance. The bills consisted of ones and twos, Dominion issue, and new fives, tens and twenties on the Bank of British Columbia.

THE MAN CAPTURED.

Since the above was written, THE TIMES has received the following telegram from Mr. Geo. Riley: "The robber, with all the money, was captured at 2 o'clock this morning between Chemainus and Maple Bay. His name is O. Adair, and he is a native of one of the Southern States."

THE LICENSING POWER.

Question as to Power of Court, When Owners of Property Object.

A question has arisen at Farwell lately, which is of some interest to many of your readers, both lay and legal. It is whether a licensing court is stopped from passing upon petitions to carry on liquor business on premises not owned, or leased or lawfully occupied by the petitioners and which business the owner of the premises objects to have carried on there. The Licensing Court sat on the statutary day to hear applications and grant certificates. This is an open court, and any person may appear and oppose the granting of certificates, without, however, limiting the discretion of the court. Mr. Farwell, the owner of the unsold portion of the townsite here, appeared in court and objected to the granting of any certificates in respect of premises on his private property; but he did not object to certificates being granted to persons owning land and houses. The licensing court considered that this objection was a strong one, and that it might be unlawful and certainly would be impolitic to grant certificates for licenses under these circumstances. But not wishing to decide so important a question at once, Mr. Sproat adjourned the court to give time for considering the point, intimating, however, his opinion as above stated. Mr. Farwell's objection has not been withdrawn and several meetings of residents have been held to discuss the question. At one of these meetings, a committe was appointed to obtain legal advice, and an opinion was obtained from Mr. Charles Wilson, M. P. P., (of Messrs. Davie & Wilson) who is at the present time in Farwell. This opinion, it is rumored, sustains the view of the Licensing Court as to the seriousness of the objection raised. Licenses, meanwhile, have been issued to those who have had certificates granted to them by the court. None of the movers in the above matter are persons who have applied for licenses, they are intermeddlers. This matter illustrates the difficulties that seem to exist in the place, some of them unconnected with the important questions between the two governments relative to the liquor traffic. There is a temporary lull in the latter dispute, but it may rise in a storm again, any day. It is satisfactory, so far, that the decisions and action of the magistrate have been upheld by the Supreme Court, and by the opinion of an able counsel on the only two occasions on which they have been adversely challenged. Outside of the disputes between the two governments, the root of most questions there is, it must be admitted, the indisposition of many people to pay just claims. Since the arrival of the Provincial authorities the place has been orderly, on the surface, but the disposition of many is to disregard the law in matters in which it is not summarily applicable. After a long residence in the province, and some experience, perhaps of pains and penalties these persons may acquire the law abiding habit which characterises our people in general.

The Late School Election.

Mr. Thornton Fell applied this forenoon to the Superintendent of Education for the production of all the declarations made by voters, for the purpose of registration under the school law. The application was made for the purpose of scrutiny, and to ascertain how many, if any, of such declarations were filed contrary to the provisions of the act. Mr. Pope demurred to the production until after consultation with the Attorney-General. As there is no provision in the law giving Mr. Fell power to summon witnesses, the Superintendent was asked to request the attendance of a number whose evidence is considered essential to the investigation. Mr. Hayward applied for a copy of the complaint, stating that he was unaware till yesterday that proceedings had been taken, and he wished to procure counsel. It was in consequence adjourned till Monday next. Notices of the objections raised will be sent to each school trustee. The enquiry will probably develope the fact that crookedness and fraud were practised, in the name of an "honest" minister, in the late election of school trustees. There was something very fishy in the whole transaction, and Mr. Fell is to be commended for the resolution he has formed to probe the matter to the bottom. But will he get justice in a court where counsel, culprit and court form a corrupt and unholy trinity?

War Ships to Arrive.

A British war ship, presumably, the Triumph, has arrived at San Francisco, having in tow the two torpedo boats, Swift and Sure, purchased by the English from the Chilian government. As soon as she had coaled she would proceed on her way, probably on Thursday next, to Victoria. With the protection afforded by two men-of-war and two torpedo boats, and with a powerful naval station at Port Hamilton, hedging the Russian navy in the harbor of Vladivostock, there is no good reason why our people should become alarmed at the renewed probabilities of war between the Lion and the Bear. When war comes, be come it must some day not in the far future, the British Columbia coast would never be reached by a Russian cruiser—she would go to the bottom or back to Vladivostock. There is not, therefore, much sense in becoming alarmed, although it is a good policy to be on the qui vive for any eventuality.

A Dissembling Press.

There is no class of men forming a part of any generally respectable community who are held in such utter supreme contempt as those who profess to teach what they do not practice. In this connection THE TIMES fears no contradiction in stating that, for duplicity of character, the Colonist is without a rival, and stands "A. 1" against all competitors. We are censured by the Colonist for publishing extracts from the revelations which have appeared of late in the Pall Mall Gazette; while that very moral (?) sheet has, like many other newspapers, copied extracts from the same source. Not only has our morning contemporary been guilty of the same crime as THE TIMES is accused of being guilty of—which we contend is our legitimate duty as a journalist—but that dissembling sheet, on the 7th and 8th of February last, published in its columns the evidence of, and comments on, a case then before the courts, where the plainest of language was used; to say nothing of the "Morgan" advertisements. No comments were then indulged in on "the vile stuff" by our would-be high toned and pure contemporary. Perhaps it did not suit its purpose at that time to assume the role of moralist? The misleading sheet states that dispatches are necessarily stripped of their most offensive features, knowing at the same time that not a word of the particulars which have reached this place but have found their way into the respectable newspapers otherwise than from the telegraph dispatches. THE TIMES is well aware where the shoe pinches the Colonist. The fact is that owing to our time being eight hours behind London time, we are enabled to place before our readers the most important news of the day a whole night ahead of our jealous contemporary. Brother Colonist, "take the beam ou of your own eye and then you will see clearly to take the mote out of your brother's eye."
